P R E F A C E.

THE public favor with which the official "Congressional Directory" has been received since it has been under the editorial charge of the subscriber prompted the preparation of this work, which contains similar authentic statistical information, with many other facts concerning the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial branches of the Federal Government of the United States, from its conception down to the present time. It is hoped that this mass of political statistics, obtained from official sources, will not only be of interest to politicians, but generally serviceable to all other citizens who may seek clear and accurate information concerning the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial officials since the formation of our government. A brief outline of what the work contains may facilitate its use.

The First Part is a series of registers of the different sessions of the Continental Congress, and of the forty-five successive Congresses since the adoption of the Federal Constitution. The register of each Congress contains a complete list of the Senators, Representatives, and Delegates who served in it, with their home residences, and with the date of commencement and termination of their respective terms when they did not serve throughout the Congress. This information has never been given heretofore, as the lists of members published in the journals and elsewhere contain only the names of those serving at the date of their publication. It will enable any one interested in the congressional career of any member to see at a glance who were his associates in either House during any session in which he served, and it will also show who were in Congress when any law was placed on the statute-book.

The Second Part is a record of the successive Administrations, with the prominent Executive officials, from the organization of the Federal Government. It also contains a carefully-prepared schedule of the duties of these officials, which can but be useful to all desiring a knowledge of the practical operation of the Executive Departments and of their respective Bureaus.

The Third Part is devoted to the Supreme Court of the United States, with its attendant Marshals, Clerks, and Reporters, with the Judges of the Circuit and District Courts, and of the Court of Claims.

The Fourth Part contains Statistical Sketches of the Delegates to the Continental Congress, and of the Senators, Representatives, and Delegates who have been elected or appointed to the Forty-five successive Congresses under the Federal Constitution. While the Republic has preserved with commendable pride the histories of her martial defenders, it is well that the memories and services of her legislators should also be honored and cherished. Posterity should have accurate information concerning those who, "in Congress assembled," have enacted the laws under which the United States have advanced from feeble infancy into the vigor of maturity, and have successfully combated attacks from foreign and domestic foes.

The information given has been condensed into the smallest space consistent with placing it on record in so methodical and clear a manner that all can understand and use it. Whenever it has been possible to obtain the desired information concerning a Congressman, there has been given his name, his relationship to other legislators, the place and time of his birth, his education, his occupation, the public offices which he has held (with the dates of holding them), his politics when elected or appointed to Congress, the name and politics of his opponent, and the vote received by each. Great care has been taken to perfect the political feature of these Statistical Sketches, which has been studiously ignored by the compilers of other biographical dictionaries; but comments and criticisms have been dispensed with, as likely to encumber and vitiate a work designed to present for reference an authentic record of the public services and the politics of those who have sat in our Federal Councils.

Six years' labor has failed to produce a perfect work, and to obtain much desired information concerning some Congressmen, while there has been a superfluity of facts about others not easily compressed within the limited available space; but the compiler trusts that he shall not be charged with negligence in collecting material, nor with carelessness in arranging it. The fact that works regarded as authorities often differ in the spelling of names, the dates of birth, and other facts concerning many Congressmen, while not a word of information can be found anywhere concerning others, is a proof of the necessity for such a publication as this. The names of Congressmen have been spelled in the First Part as they appear on the Journals of the two Houses, although the orthography is not always the same in different sessions. There are authenticated accounts of Congressmen who would not correct the misspelling of their names in the printed Public Documents; and there was one Representative who heard the tally-clerk give him an initial which had never belonged to him, on every roll-call during a long session, without attempting to contradict the mistake. In the Statistical Sketches it is believed that the names have been correctly spelled.

The arrangement of the entire work being chronological and alphabetical, no index is necessary.

The compiler is under great obligations to many gentlemen for the kindness with which they have responded to requests for information concerning themselves; while others occupying official positions have taken a degree of trouble in aiding researches, for which heartfelt thanks make an inadequate return.

THE EXECUTIVE.

THE EXECUTIVE.

FIRST ADMINISTRATION. — WASHINGTON. — March 4, 1789–March 3, 1791.

GEORGE WASHINGTON of Virginia was unanimously elected, receiving 69 electoral votes. His cabinet was:—

Secretary of State. — Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, appointed Sept. 26, 1789.

Secretary of the Treasury. — Alexander Hamilton of New York, appointed Sept. 11, 1789.

Secretary of War and of the Navy. — Henry Knox of Massachusetts, appointed Sept. 12, 1789.

Attorney-General. — Edmund Randolph of Virginia, appointed Sept. 26, 1789.

JOHN ADAMS of Massachusetts was elected Vice-President, receiving 34 votes; while John Jay had 9 votes; Robert H. Harrison, 6; John Rutledge, 6; John Hancock, 4; George Clinton, 3; Samuel Huntington, 2; James Armstrong, 1; Edward Telfair, 1; and Benjamin Lincoln, 1.

SECOND ADMINISTRATION. — WASHINGTON. — March 4, 1791–March 3, 1797.

GEORGE WASHINGTON of Virginia was unanimously re-elected President, receiving 132 votes. His cabinet was:—

Secretaries of State. — Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, continued; Edmund Randolph of Virginia, appointed Jan. 2, 1794; Timothy Pickering of Massachusetts, Dec. 10, 1795.

Secretaries of the Treasury. — Alexander Hamilton of New York, continued; Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut, Feb. 2, 1795.

Secretaries of War and of the Navy. — Henry Knox, continued; Timothy Pickering of Massachusetts, Jan. 2, 1795; James McHenry of Maryland, Jan. 27, 1796.

Attorneys-General. — Edmund Randolph of Virginia, continued; William Bradford of Pennsylvania, Jan. 28, 1794; Charles Lee of Virginia, Dec. 10, 1795.

JOHN ADAMS of Massachusetts was re-elected Vice-President, receiving 77 votes; while George Clinton had 50 votes; Thomas Jefferson, 4; and Aaron Burr, 1.

THIRD ADMINISTRATION. — JOHN ADAMS. — March 4, 1797–March 3, 1801.

JOHN ADAMS of Massachusetts was elected President, receiving the entire vote of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, and Delaware, with 10 scattering votes from other States, making 71 of the 140 votes cast. His cabinet was:—

Secretaries of State. — Timothy Pickering of Massachusetts, continued; John Marshall of Virginia, May 13, 1800.

Secretaries of the Treasury. — Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut, continued; Samuel Dexter of Massachusetts, Jan. 1, 1801.

Secretaries of the Navy. — George Cabot of Massachusetts, May 3, 1798; Benjamin Stoddard of Maryland, May 21, 1798.

THOMAS JEFFERSON of Virginia was elected Vice-President, having the next highest number of votes to the President, — 68; while Thomas Pinckney had 58; Aaron Burr, 30; Samuel Adams, 15; Oliver Ellsworth, 11; George Clinton, 7; John Jay, 5; James Iredell, 3; Samuel Johnston, 2; George Washington, 2; John Henry, 2; and Charles C. Pinckney, 1.

FOURTH ADMINISTRATION. — JEFFERSON. — March 4, 1801–March 3, 1805.

THOMAS JEFFERSON of Virginia was elected President by the House of Representatives, he and Aaron Burr having each received 73 electoral votes; while John Adams had 65 votes; Charles C. Pinckney had 64; and John Jay, 1. The House of Representatives voted to commence balloting on Wednesday, Feb. 11, 1801, and not to adjourn until a choice was effected. Seats were provided upon the floor for the President and the senators; but, during the act of balloting, the galleries were cleared of spectators, and the doors were closed. Upon the first ballot, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, and Tennessee (8) voted for Thomas Jefferson; New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware, and South Carolina (6) voted for Aaron Burr; and the votes of Vermont and Maryland (the representatives of which were divided) were given blank. The balloting was continued, and the House remained in session, nominally without adjournment, for seven days, during which 104 members were present. Some of them were so infirm or indisposed, that it was necessary to provide beds for them; and one member, who was quite ill, was attended by his wife. On the thirty-sixth ballot, which was taken on the afternoon of the 17th, the votes of Delaware and South Carolina were given blank; while those of Vermont and Maryland were given to Mr. Jefferson, and elected him. His cabinet was:—

Secretary of State.—James Madison of Virginia, March 5, 1801.

Secretary of the Treasury.—Albert Gallatin of Pennsylvania, May 14, 1801.

Secretary of War.—Henry Dearborn of Massachusetts, March 5, 1801.

Secretaries of the Navy.—Benjamin Stoddard of Maryland, continued; Robert Smith of Maryland, July 15, 1801; Jacob Crowninshield of Massachusetts, March 2, 1805.

Attorneys-General.—Levi Lincoln of Massachusetts, March 5, 1801; Robert Smith of Maryland, March 2, 1805.

AARON BURR of New York became Vice-President when Mr. Jefferson was elected President.

FIFTH ADMINISTRATION. — JEFFERSON. — March 4, 1805–March 3, 1809.

THOMAS JEFFERSON of Virginia was re-elected President, receiving 162 of the 176 votes cast. This comprised the entire electoral vote of all the States, except Connecticut, Delaware, and Maryland; the two first of which threw their full vote for Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, and the last gave 9 votes for Mr. Jefferson, and 2 for Mr. Pinckney. His cabinet was:—

Attorneys-General.—Robert Smith of Maryland, continued; John Breckinridge of Kentucky, Dec. 25, 1805; Cæsar A. Rodney of Delaware, Jan. 20, 1807.

GEORGE CLINTON of New York was elected Vice-President, receiving 162 of the 176 votes cast. This comprised the entire electoral vote of all the States, except 9 from Connecticut, 3 from Delaware, and 2 of the 11 votes from Maryland, making 14 votes for Rufus King of New York.

SIXTH ADMINISTRATION. — MADISON. — March 4, 1809–March 3, 1813.

JAMES MADISON of Virginia was elected President, having received the entire electoral vote of Vermont, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Ohio, and 13 of the 19 votes of New York, 9 of the 11 of Maryland, and 11 of the 14 of North Carolina, — in all, 122 of the 175 votes cast. George Clinton received 6 votes of New York; and the remaining 47 were given to Charles Cotesworth Pinckney. His cabinet was:—

Secretaries of State.—Robert Smith of Maryland, March 6, 1809; James Monroe of Virginia, April 2, 1811.

Secretaries of War.—William Eustis of Massachusetts, March 7, 1809; John Armstrong of New York, Jan. 13, 1813.

Secretaries of the Navy.—Paul Hamilton of South Carolina, March 7, 1809; William Jones of Pennsylvania, Jan. 12, 1813.

Attorneys-General.—Cæsar A. Rodney of Delaware, continued; William Pinkney of Maryland, Dec. 11, 1811.

GEORGE CLINTON of New York was elected Vice-President, receiving 113 votes; while Rufus King had 47; James Madison, 3; and James Monroe, 3.

SEVENTH ADMINISTRATION. — MADISON. — March 4, 1813–March 3, 1817.

JAMES MADISON of Virginia was re-elected President, having received the entire electoral vote of Vermont, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, and Louisiana, and 6 of the 11 votes of Maryland, — in all, 128 of the 217 votes cast. The remaining 89 were given for De Witt Clinton of New York. His cabinet was:—

TENTH ADMINISTRATION. — J. Q. ADAMS. — March 4, 1825–March 3, 1829.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS of Massachusetts was elected President by the House of Representatives, the electoral college not giving either of the four candidates — Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, William H. Crawford, or Henry Clay — the requisite majority, which was 132 votes. Andrew Jackson received 99 votes, being the entire electoral vote of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Indiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, 1 of the 36 votes of New York, 7 of the 11 votes of Maryland, 3 of the 5 votes of Louisiana, and 1 of the 3 votes of Illinois. John Quincy Adams received 84 votes, being the entire vote of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, and 26 of the 36 votes of New York, 1 of the 3 votes of Delaware, 3 of the 11 votes of Maryland, 2 of the 5 votes of Louisiana, and 1 of the 3 votes of Illinois. William H. Crawford received 41 votes, being the entire vote of Virginia and of Georgia, and 5 of the 36 votes of New York, 2 of the 3 votes of Delaware, and 1 of the 11 votes of Maryland. Henry Clay received 37 votes, being the entire vote of Kentucky, Ohio, and Missouri, and 4 of the 36 votes of New York. The House of Representatives balloted for the three highest candidates, Messrs. Jackson, Adams, and Crawford; and the following was the result of the first ballot: For John Quincy Adams, Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, New York, Maryland, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, and Louisiana, — 13 States; for Andrew Jackson, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, and Indiana, — 7 States; for William H. Crawford, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia, — 4 States. The speaker then declared that John Quincy Adams, having received a majority of the votes of all the States, was duly elected President. His cabinet was:—

Secretary of State. — Henry Clay of Kentucky, March 7, 1825.

The register of the treasury has charge of the great account-books of the United States, which show every receipt and disbursement, and from which statements are annually made for transmission to Congress. He signs and issues all bonds, treasury-notes, and other securities; registers all warrants drawn by the secretary upon the treasurer; transmits statements of balances due to individuals after their settlement by the first comptroller, on which payment is made; issues ships' registers, licenses, and enrolments; prepares annual returns of all vessels built, lost, or destroyed; and also prepares statements of the tonnage of vessels in which importations and exportations are made, with the various articles and their values. These duties are attended to in five divisions; viz.:—

Coupon and Note Division.—Bonds, interest-coupons, gold-certificates, coin-checks, currency certificates of deposit, and certificates of indebtedness, are examined, registered, and issued or redeemed.

Note and Fractional Currency Division.—Treasury-notes, notes of national banks which have gone into liquidation, and mutilated fractional currency, are examined, cancelled, and destroyed by maceration.

Loan Division.—Registered and coupon bonds are issued, embracing the transfer of all registered bonds; the conversion of coupon into registered; the ledger accounts with holders of registered bonds, and schedules made out upon which interest on same is paid.

Receipts and Expenditures Division.—The ledgers of the United States are kept, showing the civil, diplomatic, internal-revenue, miscellaneous, and public-debt receipts and expenditures; also statements of the warrants and drafts registered.

Tonnage Division.—Accounts are kept, showing the registered and the enrolled and licensed tonnage, divided into different classes, and exhibiting what is annually built, and what is engaged in the fisheries of different kinds.

The solicitor of the treasury is an officer in the department of justice, having a seal, and is required by law to take cognizance, under the direction of the secretary of the treasury, of all frauds or attempted frauds upon the revenue, and exercises a general supervision over all legal measures for their prevention and detection; also to establish regulations, with the approbation of the secretary of the treasury, for the observance of collectors of the customs, and, with the approbation of the attorney-general, for the observance of United-States attorneys, marshals, and clerks respecting suits in which the United States is a party or interested. He is also empowered and directed to instruct the district attorneys, marshals, and clerks of the circuit and district courts in all matters and proceedings appertaining to suits in which the United States is a party or interested, except those arising under the internal-revenue laws.

He is required to examine reports of collectors and district attorneys upon bonds delivered for suit; to inform the President of false reports of bonds delivered for suit, and supervise statements from district attorneys concerning suits, and those from marshals relating to proceedings on execution; also reports from clerks as to judgments and decrees; and is charged by the attorney-general with all post-office litigation.

He also has charge of the secret-service employees engaged in the detection of persons counterfeiting the coin, currency, and public securities of the United States, and all other frauds on the government. In addition to the duties prescribed by law, the secretary of the treasury refers to the solicitor for opinion a very large number of cases arising in his department relating to duties, remission of fines, penalties, and forfeitures, navigation and registry laws, steamboat-inspection acts, claims, &c.

The commissioner of internal revenue makes all assessments, and superintends the collection of all taxes; preparation of instructions for special tax-stamps (formerly licenses), forms, and stamps of all kinds; and pays into the treasury daily all moneys received by him from collectors. He is aided in his duties by the solicitor of internal revenue, who is an officer of the department of justice, and to whom all questions of law and practice thereunder are submitted; by one deputy commissioner, seven heads of divisions, one stenographer, twenty-five clerks of class four, thirty clerks of class three, forty clerks of class two, eighteen of class one, fifty clerks at $900 each, four messengers, and ten laborers, aggregating one hundred and eighty-seven persons.

The business of the bureau is transacted in seven divisions; viz.:—

Appointment Division.—Is charged with all matters pertaining to issuing of commissions, leaves of absence, office discipline, assorting and disposition of the mail, registry and copying of all letters; with the care of the general files, and all matters relating to messengers, laborers, office stationery, printing, advertising, and the preparation of blanks and blank-books for the bureau.

Law Division.—Is charged with all questions (except as hereinafter stated) relating to seizures, suits, abatement, and refunding claims, and those relating to special taxes, documentary stamp-taxes, taxes on incomes, legacies, and successions, and on dividends, &c.; also lands purchased for the United States on distraint, and the extension of time on distrains.

Tobacco Division. — Is charged with all matters (including special taxes) relating to tobacco, snuff, and cigars not in suit or in bond, stamp-tax on medicines and preparations under schedule A, Revised Statutes.

Division of Accounts. — Has charge of the examination and reference of the revenue and disbursing accounts, the estimates of collectors and of their applications for special allowances, and other matters relative to advertising and the purchase of blank-books, newspapers, and stationery for collectors, revenue agents, &c.; also has charge of the examination and reference of the monthly bills of revenue agents, gaugers, and distillery surveyors, and of all miscellaneous claims presented to this bureau arising under any appropriation made for carrying into effect the various internal-revenue laws (excepting claims for abatement, refunding, and drawback), and the preparation of estimates for appropriations by Congress, together with the preparation of the statistical records of the bureau.

Division of Distilled Spirits. — This division is charged with the supervision of all matters pertaining to distilleries, distilled spirits, fermented liquors, wines, rectification, gaugers' fees and instruments, approval of bonded warehouses, and the assignment of storekeepers.

Stamp Division. — This division is charged with the supervision of the preparation, safe keeping, issue, and redemption of stamps for distilled spirits, tobacco, snuff, and cigars, fermented liquors, special taxes, documentary and proprietary stamps, and the keeping of all accounts pertaining thereto; also the supervision of all business with Adams's Express Company, and the preparation, custody, and issue of steel dies for canceling stamps.

Division of Assessments. — Is charged with the preparation of the assessment lists; with the consideration of all reports and returns, except those received from distillers, rectifiers, and brewers, affording data from which assessments may be made; also with keeping the bonded account, and with the consideration of claims for the allowance of drawback.

In addition to the above, there was organized, at the commencement of what is commonly known as the "whiskey war," a division of revenue agents for the purpose of detecting any and all frauds which might be perpetrated against the internal-revenue laws; and for the reason that the work assigned to this division has been efficiently performed, and with great advantage to the interests of the government, the same has been continued, and is now in active operation.

	Thomas T. Eckert of New York, from July 27, 1866.

The office of assistant secretary of war was abolished in 1868.

MILITARY BUREAUS OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The chiefs of the military bureaus of the War Department are officers of the regular army of the United States, and a part of the military establishment; viz.:—

The Adjutant-General promulgates the orders of the President and the general commanding the army, and conducts correspondence between the general and the army, receives reports, issues commissions and resignations, superintends recruiting and the military prison at Leavenworth, has charge of the papers concerning the enlistment and drafting of volunteers, receives all muster-rolls, and furnishes consolidated reports of the entire army, and has charge, under the general, of details affecting the discipline of the army.

The Inspector-General and his assistants inspect and report upon the personnel and the matériel of the army at all posts, stations, and depots; and give instruction relative to the correct interpretation of doubtful points of law, regulations, and orders, and upon other mooted questions regarding the proper performance of military duties; and they also inspect the money accounts of all disbursing officers of the army under the act of Congress approved April 20, 1874.

The Quartermaster-General, aided by assistants, provides quarters and transportation for the army, clothing, camp and garrison equipage, horses and mules, forage, wagons, stoves, stationery, fuel, lights, straw, hospitals, and medicines; he pays the expenses of guides, spies, and interpreters, and veterinary surgeons; pays the funeral-expenses of officers and men; and is in charge of the national cemeteries.

The Commissary-General has administrative control of the subsistence department, of the disbursement of its appropriations; the providing of rations, and their issue to the army; the purchase and distribution of articles authorized to be kept for sale to officers and enlisted men; and the adjustment of accounts and returns for subsistence funds and supplies, preliminary to their settlement by the proper accounting officers of the treasury.

The Surgeon-General, under the immediate direction of the secretary of war, is charged with the administrative duties of the medical department, the designation of the stations of medical officers, and the issuing of all orders and instructions relating to their professional duties. He directs as to the selection, purchase, and distribution of the medical supplies of the army. The Army Medical Museum and the official publications of the surgeon-general's office are also under his direct control.

The Paymaster-General and his assistants pay the army, also second auditor's treasury certificates, and keep a record of said payments.

The Chief of Engineers commands the corps of engineers, which is charged with all duties relating to fortifications, whether permanent or temporary; with torpedoes for coast defence; with all works for the attack and defence of places; with all military bridges; and with such surveys as may be required for these objects, or the movement of armies in the field. It is also charged with the harbor and river improvements; with military and geographical explorations and surveys; with the survey of the lakes; and with any other engineer work specially assigned to the corps by acts of Congress, or orders of the President of the United States.

The Chief of Ordnance commands the ordnance department, the duties of which consist in providing, preserving, distributing, and accounting for every description of artillery, small-arms, and all the munitions of war, which may be required for the fortresses of the country, the armies in the field, and for the whole body of the militia of the Union. In these duties are comprised that of determining the general principles of construction, and of prescribing in detail the models and forms of all military weapons employed in war. They comprise also the duty of prescribing the regulations for the proof and inspection of all these weapons, for maintaining uniformity and economy in their fabrication, for insuring their good quality, and for their preservation and distribution; and, for carrying into effect the general purposes here stated, large annual appropriations are made; and, in order to fulfil these purposes, extensive operations are conducted at the national armories, arsenals, and ordnance depots.

The Judge-Advocate-General and his assistant receive, review, and have recorded, the proceedings of the courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and military commissions, of the armies of the United States, and furnish reports and opinions on such questions of law and other matters as may be referred to the bureau of military justice for the purpose by the secretary of war.

The Chief Signal Officer superintends the instruction of officers and men in signal duties, supervises the preparation of maps and charts, and has the reports from the numerous stations received at Washington consolidated and published.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

COMMISSIONERS OF AGRICULTURE.

Isaac Newton of Pennsylvania, June 30, 1867.

Horace Capron of Illinois, Dec. 4, 1867.

| Frederick Watts of Pennsylvania, Aug. 1, 1871.

| William G. LeDuc of Minnesota, July 1, 1877.

The commissioner of agriculture is required to collect and diffuse useful information on subjects connected with agriculture. He is to acquire and preserve in his office all information he can obtain concerning agriculture by means of books and correspondence, and by practical and scientific experiments, the collection of statistics, and other appropriate means; to collect new and valuable seeds and plants; to learn by actual cultivation such of them as may require such tests; to propagate such as may be worthy of propagation, and to distribute them among agriculturists.

The Statistician. — He collects reliable information as to the condition, prospects, and results of the cereal, cotton, and other crops, by the instrumentality of four correspondents in each county of every State: this information is gathered at stated periods of each month, carefully studied, estimated, tabulated, and published.

The Entomologist. — He obtains information with regard to insects injurious to vegetation; investigates the character of insects sent him, to point out their modes of infliction, and the means by which their depredations may be avoided; and arranges specimens of their injuries and nest architecture.

The Botanist. — He receives botanical contributions, and, after making desirable selections for the National Herbarium, distributes the duplicate plants among foreign and domestic scientific societies, institutions of learning, and botanists; and answers inquiries of a botanico-agricultural character.

The Chemist. — He makes analyses of natural fertilizers, vegetable products, and other materials which pertain to the interests of agriculture. Applications are constantly made from all portions of the country for the analysis of soils, minerals, liquids, and manipulated manures.

The Microscopist. — He makes original investigations, mostly relating to the habits of parasitic fungoid plants, which are frequently found on living plants and animals, producing sickly growth, and, in many cases, premature death.

The Propagating Garden. — Large numbers of exotic, utilizable, and economic plants are propagated and distributed. The orange family is particularly valuable; and the best commercial varieties are propagated and distributed to the greatest practicable extent.

The Seed Division.—Seeds are purchased, in this and foreign countries, of reliable firms, whose guaranty of good quality and genuineness cannot be questioned: they are packed at the department, and distributed to applicants in all parts of the country.

The Library.—Exchanges are made, by which the library receives reports of the leading agricultural, pomological, and meteorological societies of the world.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING.

The printing and binding of the two Houses of Congress and of the executive departments was executed by contracts, awarded to the lowest bidders, until 1819, when it was made the duty of the Senate and House to elect printers for each successive Congress; and, later, the President was directed to have all the printing and binding of the executive departments executed by one of the congressional printers, designated by him. It frequently happened, in carrying out this law, that one firm or person was elected by each House as its printer for that Congress. The printers thus elected, generally proprietors of Washington newspapers, were:—

Printers to the Senate.—Gales and Seaton of "The National Intelligencer," 1820; Duff Green, "Telegraph," 1831; Gales and Seaton, 1835; Thomas Allen, "Madisonian," 1841; Gales and Seaton, 1843; Ritchie and Heiss, "Union," 1845; Robert Armstrong, "Union," 1852; Beverly Tucker, "Sentinel," 1852; A. O. P. Nicholson, "Union," 1856; W. A. Harris, "Union," 1857; George W. Bowman, 1860.

Printers to the House of Representatives.—Gales and Seaton, 1821; Blair and Rives, "Globe," 1835; Thomas Allen, 1837; Gales and Seaton, 1841; Blair and Rives, 1843; Ritchie and Heiss, 1845; John T. Towers, 1853; A. O. P. Nicholson, 1854; Cornelius Wendell, 1856; J. H. Steadman, 1857; Thomas H. Ford, 1860.

The Public Printing-Office was established in 1860, and has since been under the superintendence of the following gentlemen, with varied official designations: Cornelius Wendell of New York, from 1860; John D. Defrees of Indiana, from March 5, 1861; Cornelius Wendell, from Sept. 1, 1866; John D. Defrees, from Feb. 26, 1867; Almon M. Clapp of New York, from June 4, 1868; John D. Defrees, from April 6, 1877.

"The Congressional Globe" was published by John C. Rives from December, 1833, until March 6, 1873, giving reports of the debates and proceedings of the Twenty-third to the Forty-second Congresses inclusive.

"The Congressional Record" has been published, by order of Congress, at the Public Printing-Office since the commencement of the Forty-third Congress, Dec. 1, 1873. Copies are supplied to the public at the cost of printing.

THE CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY.

"The Congressional Directory" was published as a private enterprise from 1820 until 1864 inclusive, and copies were sold to Congress and to the Departments. It was sometimes two months after the commencement of a session before the first edition of the Directory was ready for delivery; and the work did not contain much of the varied information given in similar publications at the capitals of some of the States, and at the seats of government in Europe.

At the commencement of the second session of the Thirty-eighth Congress, a joint resolution was passed unanimously, ordering the compilation and publication of "The Congressional Directory," under the direction of the Joint Committee on Public Printing. The joint committee, urged by senators and representatives to give additional value to the work, examined upward of twenty publications of a similar nature, and adopted several features, among them statistical sketches of members of Congress. The form of these statistical sketches which met the approval of the joint committee was that which they found in a publication entitled the "House of Commons," which has been published annually at London, in its present shape, since 1852; and it has since been used as a model in the compilation of the pamphlet Congressional Directory by the compiler of this work. The favor with which the publication has been received prompted the preparation of this Congressional Directory, which includes all of the executive, legislative, and judicial officers of the Federal Government to the present time.

STATISTICAL SKETCHES.

Abbott, Amos, was born at Andover, Massachusetts, September 10, 1786; reared on his father's farm; educated at the district school and at Bradford Academy; engaged in mercantile pursuits; filled a number of town-offices; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835, 1836, and 1842, and of the State Senate in 1840 and 1843; was one of the founders of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and for several years one of its directors; was elected a representative in the Twenty-eighth Congress, as a Whig, on the second trial; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from February 15, 1844, until March 3, 1849; died at Andover, Massachusetts, November 2, 1868.

Abbott, Joel, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1790; received an academic education; removed to Washington, Georgia; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fifteenth Congress, as a Democrat, on a general ticket, and was successively re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, receiving on his last election 11,231 votes as a supporter of Mr. Crawford for the presidency, and serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1825; died at Washington, Georgia, November 19, 1826.

Abbott, Joseph C., was born at Concord, New Hampshire, July 15, 1825; received an academic education; read law, and was admitted to the bar in March, 1852; was editor and proprietor of "The Manchester American" for five years, and subsequently editor of "The Boston Atlas;" was appointed adjutant-general of the State of New Hampshire in July, 1855, and held the office until July, 1861, when he resigned; received orders from the War Department in September, 1861, to raise a regiment of infantry, which regiment having been raised, he entered the service as lieutenant-colonel, and in November, 1863, was promoted colonel; in January, 1865, was brevetted brigadier-general for "gallant services in the capture of Fort Fisher;" after leaving the service, removed to North Carolina, and entered into business; in September, 1867, was elected to the State Constitutional Convention; in April, 1868, was elected to the State legislature; in July, 1868, was elected United-States senator from North Carolina, as a Republican, serving from July 17, 1868, to March 3, 1871; resumed business at Wilmington.

Abbott, Josiah G., was born at Chelmsford, Massachusetts, November 1, 1815; received a classical education, graduating from Harvard University in 1832; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Boston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836, and of the State Senate in 1841 and 1842; was a judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts in 1855; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fourth Congress, as a Democrat, receiving 6,429 votes against 5,717 votes for Rufus S. Frost, Republican (owing to informalities in the returns, Mr. Frost obtained the certificate of election; but the House decided that Mr. Abbott was entitled to the seat, and he was sworn in July 28, 1876, serving to March 3, 1877); declined a re-nomination to Congress; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis in 1876, which nominated Tilden and Hendricks; was a member of the Electoral Commission.
